

Resolution F06.01 Online Teaching Load

Whereas, Online instruction is an established and reputable modality for delivering community college courses in many disciplines;

Whereas, The student demand for online courses is likely to exceed the supply for the foreseeable future;

Whereas, There are relatively few faculty at Crafton Hills College who currently possess the interest and/or requisite background to teach online courses;

Resolved, That the Crafton Hills College Academic Senate refuse to recognize any administratively imposed limits on the percentage of faculty load which may be taught online and

Resolved, That the Crafton Hills College Academic Senate reaffirm the duty of all faculty members, regardless of distribution of load, to participate fully and regularly in departmental decision making, committee assignments, and student interaction.
