

CIS SLO's

CIS 091 - Students completing CIS 091: Keyboarding will be able to:

1. Demonstrate the ability to keyboard by touch and with speed and accuracy
2. Develop the skills necessary for efficient application of software functions and techniques to create a variety of documents used in the workplace, academia, and personal affairs
3. Practice the skills necessary for proofreading that results in error-free copy
4. Demonstrate effective file management techniques for organizing document files on a storage device or medium for the purpose of efficient retrieval, maintenance, copying and moving, deleting, and backup
5. Develop knowledge about filename extensions necessary for file recognition and compatibility with software

CIS 101 - Students completing CIS 101: Introduction to Computers will be able to:

1. determine when and how computer technology is appropriate to the solution of a problem
2. demonstrate the ability to identify computer hardware components
3. demonstrate the ability to identify and describe the functions and interaction of system software and application software

CIS 117 - Students completing CIS 117- Scripting will be able to:

1. Design and develop a client-side script
2. Design and develop a server-side script

CIS 161 - Students completing CIS 161: Website Design and Programming using Dreamweaver will be able to:

1. Define a web page layout
2. Discuss various template options in Dreamweaver
3. Produce a template-based web site in Dreamweaver
4. Develop work-flow strategies in Dreamweaver
5. Propose a web design and templates for a new web site
6. Compare completed websites against similar industry websites

CIS 163 - Students completing CIS 163: Introduction to Photoshop - will be able to:

1. Define and effectively work with raster-based artwork for both screen and print publication.
2. Correct and enhance existing photographs.

3. Create original artwork and compositions.

CIS 190A - Students completing CIS 190A: Web Master Internship will be able to:

1. Demonstrate the ability to work effectively in a team-based, collaborative environment.
2. Identify and describe strategies for setting, maintaining, and meeting web page and web site project deadlines
3. Describe both the interpersonal and the technical skills required for obtaining employment as a webmaster.

CIS 190B - Students completing CIS 190B: Network Administration Internship will be able to:

1. Demonstrate the ability to work effectively in a team-based, collaborative network environment.
2. Identify and describe strategies for setting, maintaining, and meeting network project deadlines
3. Describe both the interpersonal and the technical skills required for obtaining employment as a network administrator.

CIS 190C - Students completing CIS 190C: Hardware Technician Internship will be able to:

1. Demonstrate the ability to work effectively in a team-based, collaborative technical environment.
2. Identify and describe strategies for setting, maintaining, and meeting project deadlines
3. Describe the interpersonal and technical skills required for obtaining employment as a hardware technician.